NOCTURNE.

Up to her chamber window,
A slight wife utills goes,
And up this noise's ladder
Climbs a bold white rose.

I lounge in the flex shadows,
I see the lady lean,
Unclassing her silken girdle
The curtains' folds between.

She smiles on her white rose lover,
She reaches out her hand
And helps him at the window—
I see it where I stand!

To her scarlet lips he holds his
And kisses him many a time—
Ah, well! it was he that won her,
Because he dared to climb!

THE SOUTH KENTUCKIAN.

Chas. M. MEAGHAN, EDITOR.

HOPKINSVILLE, FEB. 8, 1881.

The Trigg Democrat is working against the Hopkinsville tobacco market.

Thus Carlyle, the great Scotch writer, is dead. "One by one we are passing away."

There are some people who are actually so incredulous as not to believe everything they see in the newspapers.

Gen. Hancock after all has been elected and declared President—the National Big Association of America.

An exchange remarks that when Tom Buford takes his next sulky hunt it is to be hoped that he will bag some Owen county jurors.

The Breckinridge News would not be surprised if Hon. Howell E. Jackson, Tennessee's new Senator should soon up as a Presidential dark horse your years hence.

The Republican Legislature of Pennsylvania has not yet been delivered of a United States Senator. The indications are that the mountain will bring forth a mouse in the end.

The editor of the Crittenden Press took part in a vehicular smash-up and was unable "to fill the editorial chair" last week. We would infer from this that the gentleman also takes his meals standing.

Philautus Sawyer, the new Senator from Wisconsin, gave his two daughters $100,000 apiece when they were married. Wonder if he has any more he would like to marry off on those terms?

No man who has opinions of his own dares to maintain them can pass through life without making enemies. Don't try to please everybody. It is better to have the enmity of a few than the contempt of all.

There are three native Irishmen in the United States Senate.—Fair, Small and Jones and the prospects are that another, Oliver, of Pennsylvania will also be elected. Beck of this State is a native Scotchman.

Let the next Legislature enact a law that the man who is acquitted of murder on the plea of insanity, shall be confined for life in a lunatic asylum. "As thick as crazy murderers in Kentucky," is getting to be a common expression in other states.

Jno. B. Gaines, the editor of the Paducah Enterprise, has been sued to the tune of $10,000 by H. M. Morgan for slander. It seems that the Enterprise stated that Morgan did not believe on oath. If Gaines loses the suit it will probably cut off the profits of a whole month in the newspaper business.

In another column of this paper will be found an article upon the different kinds of meters. There is one kind of meter which we regard as preferable to all of the kinds our correspondent mentions. It is to meet her alone, when no one else is nigh, and whisper words of love and hear her answer "aye."

The petition of certain ladies praying the Legislature to submit a constitutional amendment to the people giving women the right to vote, ought to be granted. There should be no proscription on account of sex in this land of freedom. Let the women vote.—Evansville Courier.

If women could vote the handsome man would always be elected. Let 'em vote. Don't know but what we might be a candidate sometime.

The beautiful poem entitled "The Wife's Reply," written by a prominent young lawyer of this city, and handed us for publication, is respectfully declined. The poem possesses decided merit, but the editor of this paper is averse to being implicated in any affair, poetical, romantic or otherwise, concerning other men's wives.

The walls of this sanctum are now adorned with a number of beautiful pictures which often lead strangers to mistake it for an art gallery. It is true some of the pictures have a gallery appearance as the Clarksville Chronicle youth would say, but the only artist who figures in this holy of holies is the individual who frescoes these columns with nonsense from week to week.

Dan O'Sullivan, of the Louisville Post comes down on Joe Multahatt and Pete Brizendine like a thousand of brick. Dan recognizes in them a pair of "low, vulgar, would-be humorists who ought to be handled without gloves." Multahatt read the item while here and left on the next train for Louisville, with fire in his eyes. Dan will probably be called upon to do the "handling" as Joe is "bad medicine" when he gets stirred up.

The votes of the Presidential electors will be counted to-morrow by the two houses of Congress in joint session and Vice President Wheeler is to declare Jno. A. Garfield and Chester A. Arthur duly elected President and Vice President of these United States for the next four years from March the 4th. There is only one consolation to defeated Democrats, the next President will be one who was elected by the votes of the people and not by the odd man of the partisan convention.

STATE NEWS.

According to the Times a man in Madisonville had twins last week.

Bowling Green failed to subscribe to a telephone exchange.

The new head of the Mercer Enterprise may be, as the Enterprise says, a great man in his part of the State and still small timber in other portions of the commonwealth. We have never had the pleasure of meeting the editor of the Enterprise which probably accounts for his assertion that we are not familiar with the great men of the State.

Great complaint is made that the Democratic Congressmen do not attend the sessions regularly, but many of them habitually absent themselves when important measures are being disposed of. Mr. Blackburn, of Kentucky, has introduced a bill requiring a list of absences to be published in the official record so that each member's constituents can know whether he is making them a faithful representation. No member should be allowed to draw pay for the time he is absent from his seat. This would move toward compelling them to attend than anything else. Dock them for lost time and fine them for being absent without satisfactory excuse.

The local editor of the Columbus Times had a fit of poetry last week brought on by a serenade.

Mr. M. D. Brown, of the Elkhorn Register, has formally announced himself a candidate for the legislature.

Miss Jennie Washington caught her clothing on fire and received burns which caused her death in Logan county.

A Barren county groom-elect put off his wedding because the roads were too bad to go to town after the incuse.

A four year old child of Mr. Kidwell fell into a tub of scalding water at Bowling Green and lost its life, says the Gazette.

The money orders at the Cadiz Post office during the year 1880 amounted to $47,963.27, according to the Democrat.

The Bardstown Item doesn't approve the resolution of the W. K. Elliott upon the plea of insanity. The verdict was a shame and a disgrace to the law of Kentucky and has never been equaled except by the Arnold jury last year. Buford was a cold blooded, heartless, vindictive murderer of an innocent man and that man a judge of the Appellate court, who was shot down like a dog on the steps of the capitol, without the slightest provocation. And yet his murderer is acquited. The man who would head a mob to lynch Buford would be a benefactor to humanity, and outraged law and justice.

N. J. Harris has announced himself a candidate for the State Senate from the district composed of Ohio, Muhlenberg and Butler counties.

Mrs. J. M. Hines, city attorney of Kentucky which were not represented at Madisonville have heartily endorsed the action of the meeting held there and declare their intention to join the W. K. P. A. The work done there is bound to prove of great benefit. The resolutions adopted have been approved by the Courier Journal, the Frankfort Yeoman and other leading papers of the State. We are glad to see that the Union Local, about the only paper in this district that opposed the meeting, has endorsed the work done. We would be glad if the papers of Western Kentucky would each state in its columns whether or not it will endorse and help to enforce the resolutions adopted.

Midnight regulators visited the house of a young man named Jno. B. Rake in Warren county and fired through the windows riddling his bed with bullets. Fortunately he was not at home at the time.

It is reported that Gov. Jno. C. Underwood will shortly start a branch of the Louisville Post at Frankfort, and the Yeoman suggests that it be called the Post-Mortem.

The Democrat says all applicants for teachers' certificates in Trigg county, will hereafter be required to give the names of all Governors of Kentucky from 1792 to the present time.

Wm. McKinney was murdered by Columbus Case at Somerset in a fight over an old friend. They were both members of the Methodist church on an elder and the other a Sunday School Supt.

Gov. Blackburn has pardoned Mathew Shanahan a murderer, who was sentenced to death but afterwards had his sentence commuted to imprisonment for life. He had been in prison for ten years.

Miss Cordelia Keown, of Ohio county, was watching by the bedside of a dying friend, she lay down to sleep for a few minutes before the fire and while asleep her clothing caught fire and she was so badly burned that she died a day or two afterward, says the Hartland Herald.

The Princeton Banner says Mr. Marble has at his house quite a curiosity—a lamb that walks quite well on its two fore feet. It was born during the late cold snap, and its hind feet and a good portion of its hind legs were "knocked off." He carried it home, cared for it, and is now bright and lively. It rises up, balances itself on its fore feet and paces about very well indeed. Barrom has a $100 in stock for that lamb if it lives to be a hundred years old and learns to pace and rack well.

The Hartford Herald reports a terrible affair. Mr. Wiley Embrey lived in Butler county with his family, a wife and ten children. In the night Mrs. Embrey awoke and discovered the house to be on fire. She and a grown daughter each seized a small child and escaped. The father went to the stairs to call his children up, but just as the roof fell in, destroying him and seven children, between the ages of four and twenty years. Mr. Embrey had some fire and the fire is believed to have been the work of incendiaries. The remains of the eight bodies were buried in one coffin.

We learn that a mysterious apparition was seen one night recently, which was nothing more than a phantom locomotive. The narrator, whom we withhold, was walking the track of the Western & Atlantic R. R. about two miles from town one night last week, when he discovered the headlight of an engine approaching around a curve. Strange to say, he heard no noise as the train came on, and presently he stepped from the track and waited for it to pass. He was still puzzled why no noise attended the engine's approach, and as it came opposite he noticed that the whole machinery had a ghostly, phantom-like appearance. At the throttle stood a pale, wild-eyed engineer, while a spectre-like fireman was pulling the bell rope, but no sound came from the bell. All this he observed as the train rushed past him like a shadow. He swears that the object he saw was a phantom train, of which there are several mentioned in railroad literature.

A Pretty Story.

In Naples the papers tell a very pretty story of the Queen of Italy. It appears that as she was driving to the royal wood of Licalo, the coachman mistook the road, and one of the gentlemen asked a countryman the way. The man, seeing the fine carriage and horses, thought he was being fooled. "As if you did not know!" he said with a big grin. The Queen laughed, and assured him they were lost. Then only did the countryman confess to point out the way, a turn which he walked off, as if fearing to be laughed at again.

"Give him twenty francs for his trouble," said the Queen to one of her escorts, who going after the countryman said to him: "Here, ma man, is a little present from the Queen of Italy, who thanks you."

"The Queen!" cried the countryman, returning to the carriage. "Forgive me that I did not know thee. But I had never seen thee before. Thou art as beautiful as a May rose. God bless thee," and the carriage drove off.

Now the countryman, who had once seen the Queen, wanted to see her pretty face again, and the following day he presented himself at the palace. "I know her, you know," he added apologetically. "I spoke to her yesterday, and I want to speak to her again."

I thinking he had to do with a mad man, the porter was about to hale the poor fellow arrested, when the very gentleman who had given him the twenty francs appeared and recognizing the man, told him to wait. He informed the Queen of his presence. "Bring him here, by all means," was the answer.

When the man was, for the second time, before the Queen, he said: "Yes, 't thou. I thought I had seen a fairy. Thou art just an angel. I did not tell thee yesterday that I have two little ones without a mother. Will they be their mother?"

"That I will," said the Queen.

"Then there's the twenty francs thou gave me yesterday. I thank thee, but I want no money." And he went away, crying and smiling like a child.

The Queen has adopted the two little ones, and they are in a nice condition, under social insurance.

For the immediate and permanent cure of all female complaints and irregularities, such as leucorrhœa, metrorrhagia, prolapsus uteri, hysteria, nymphomania and excesses, hysterical fits, &c., nothing equals English Female Bitters. It is acknowledged by thousands of smiling and happy females who have been cured by its use.

Woman's primitive beauty and vigor, which have been lost, can be restored by the action of these nostrum agents.

These agents necessarily regulate, fortify and antagonize all existing female irritations, &c., &c., or destructions which produce the ill effects. The most unfeeling locked up secretions, and every man who ran for Congress as a Republican can in that section has given notice of a contest. Greed of office is the cohesive principle of the Republican Party, and the rascality of the entire organization to stand up as one man in the perpetration of any partisan outrage is evident of its success.

Democrats always look for redress in an appeal to the people, but before the day of reckoning comes round the wings are forgotten.

A single accident, the effects of which have not yet entirely disappeared, eventuated to a member of the House of Representatives just before the holiday recess. He had been in the habit of using a hair tonic before retiring to bed, cooling his powerfully tickled throat and inducing sleep.

One night he forgot it, put out the light, and laid himself down to sleep. But soon he awoke, he remembered the tonic, and reaching out his hand in the darkness, thinking he knew just where it was, seized a bottle and poured sulphuric acid upon his head, rubbing it in vigorously.

The Queen made as much as men, and young love will not fail to pay. No one who is willing to work fails to pay.
